

Are You a Good Digital Citizen?

CHECKLIST

Do you know where to find digital content...

- At home? Do you know where to find your school's resources outside of the classroom?
- At school? Do you know where you can access digital content during and after class?
- At the library? Your public library provides unlimited access to digital resources to help you research.

Do you give credit where credit is due? It is very important to cite your information sources. Britannica makes it easy to do so by providing automatic citations for every article, image, and video.

Do you evaluate? Always check to see if your sources are credible, reliable, up-to-date, and relevant to your topic.

Do you respect others? Be kind, positive, and constructive when on social media, working on shared classroom projects, and writing e-mails.

Do you respect yourself? Post a positive reflection of who you are, the things you find most interesting, and your goals in life. Also, keep your passwords private to ensure you're in charge of your digital footprint.

Do you share? You work hard on your projects! Make sure to share them with the world! Others will benefit from your unique perspective.

INFORMATION LITERACY SERIES